

NOON EDITION

NOON EDITION

HEAD OF COOKS' UNION GIVES SOME INSIDE
DOPE ABOUT THE WAITRESSES' STRIKE

THE DAY BOOK

An Adless Daily Newspaper.

N. D. Cochran,
Editor and Publisher.
500 South Peoria St.

398

Tel. Monroe 353.
Automatic 51-422.

By Mail, 50 Cents a Month.

VOL. 3, NO. 130

Chicago, Monday, March 2, 1914

ONE CENT

"WHOSE WIFE AM I?" ASKS WOMAN IN PECULIAR TWIN BROTHERS' CASE

*Southern Beauty Recently Gave Up Her Husband Because She Thought He Was His Twin Brother—
Now She Has Changed Her Thoughts and Wants Him Back Again.*

Americus, Ga., March 2.—Whose wife am I, anyway? Rosebud English asks the courts of Georgia.

Once she was Mrs. Oliver; then she was Mrs. James; now she is known as Miss Rosebud English, the name she had before she first sailed out over turbulent matrimonial seas.

She divorced Oliver because she thought he was his twin brother, who already had a wife, and married James; she divorced James when she found out that Oliver was not his twin brother, and therefore had no other wife at the time he married her.

So it's up to the court to decide the legal status of the former wife of Alfred D. Oliver, now that he has been released by the Mississippi authorities on the ground that he is not L. C. Harding, in whose name he was serving a penal sentence, and who, Oliver claims, is his twin brother.

Oliver was formerly a bank president. According to him, it was his half brother and not himself who perpetrated the offenses that were laid at his door. He intends to enter the banking business again. His wife, or former wife, has already entered into negotiations to see if he will allow her to return to him.

"Our marriage should not have